Principal Mrs. Mary S. Gladden

Dear Maxson Students:

The journey through life is a long one. The success of that journey depends largely on what you think and how you feel about yourself. While some of you are completing your first year on this journey through Maxson School, others are moving on to another level of this journey with good feelings and also mixed emotions about the experiences they must soon face.

Your years in middle school are designed to help you explore life's choices — through the academic program and the social experiences which have been provided. Hard work and an immersion in the life of the school through its various activities have given you one set of experiences, while an indifference to school work and the activities in school have provided you with quite different results. These, too, are a few of life's choices you have sampled. You may not always be able to choose your circumstances, but remember, you can choose the attitude necessary to cope and even overcome some negative circumstances in which you will find yourselves. Those positive attitudes which you will choose will enable you to rise above adversities and elevate the quality of your life.

I think you are very special students and I am so very proud to have shared this year with you. No, there have not all been good days, but the good days as well as the days which have not been so good, have enabled us to learn much from you. While we understand that the past does not equal the future, we believe that your journey through Maxson School this year, for most of you, can only make you stronger and wiser.

My personal best wishes to all of you!

Sincerely,

Mary S. Gladden
Principal

Maxson Honor Society

The honor society is an integral part of our school family. Students inducted are "role models". They must excel in leadership, academics, citizenship, character, and service. Both advisors, Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Metz personify these ideals. We wish them well!

Monthly Mental Masters

Student of the Month: Each month students are selected by their teachers for academic achievement. Keep up the good work!

Our Mission . . .

In recognition of the uniqueness of the chronological, social and emotional development of middle school students, Maxson Middle School will provide a positive environment for learning which will promote critical thinking, self-direction, social effectiveness and human values. In addition, emphasis will be on continued improvement and utilization of life skills through a variety of experiences which will enable our students to make appropriate choices in a more specialized high school curriculum.

*****

The faculty, staff, students and parents of Maxson Middle School are sincerely appreciative for the vision and efforts of so very many people who have worked untiringly on this publication.
